Non-Branded Search Terms Rank — TopServ Digital Book

Period: June 9 – September 6, 2026 (last 90 days) | Source: Google Ads search_term_view, 15 active accounts | Prepared by Eduardo Larangeiras | v2, corrected

Summary

Total non-branded conversions from actual search queries in this period: 1,009.4. Total branded search-term conversions (excluded): 268.2.

Correction from v1: the branded/non-branded split used in the first pass had a substring bug ("branded" matches inside "nonbranded") that wrongly excluded most real non-branded campaigns. It's fixed here the same way as the companion keyword report — campaign/ad-group brand detection now distinguishes "Branded" from "NonBranded"/"Unbranded" and also catches bare "Brand," and each account's own company name plus any carried manufacturer brand (Mitsubishi, Daikin for All Seasons AC) is excluded wherever it appears in the query text, across all 15 accounts.

Observations

Zen Air Heating and Cooling dominates this list: "ac technicians," "a c technician," "air conditioner technician," "ac technician," and "hvac technicians" together account for roughly 420 of the book's 1,009 non-branded search-term conversions, at very low cost (under $1/click on the top term). This is the same pattern flagged in the companion keyword report — verify these against GA4/CRM before treating them as verified leads; a job-seeker or curiosity search ("hvac technician" as a career query) converting on a lead form at this rate would be unusual and is worth ruling out as a tracking/conversion-action issue.

All Seasons AC's converting non-branded queries are still largely competitor and distributor names even after excluding the account's own brand and manufacturer terms: "petro home services," "gallettair," "weber and grahn southampton," "meenan oil company," "burts reliable southold." These are real competitor/distributor names in its Long Island / NY market picked up by broad match. Some convert well and may be intentional competitor-conquest terms; any not intentional are candidates for negatives.

Proud Pops, Golden Plumbing, and All Heart show a mix of generic local-intent terms ("home services near me," "plumbing contractors in my area") and a couple of competitor names ("roto rooter dishwasher," "tom drexler plumbing") converting at meaningful volume — also worth a quick negative-keyword review if unintentional.

C&S Air, Gillespie's Heating and Cooling, and Live Wire Electric show zero non-branded search-term conversions in this window, consistent with paused, new, or rank/budget-constrained non-branded campaigns on those accounts.

Note: search terms are the raw text a user typed before Google matched it to a keyword, so intent can differ from the keyword that triggered the ad. Branded exclusion = campaign/ad-group name containing "brand" (excluding explicit "nonbranded"/"unbranded" labels) OR query text matching the account's own company name or carried manufacturer brand. Figures aggregate the same query text across accounts where more than one client picked it up.
